Secretary Declares Senator Has Been Poorly Advised on U. S. Finances.

Answering in detail criticisms made by Senator Harding concerning the way the government finances have been administered, Secretary Houston of the Treasury Department, in a statement given out last night said that he had been forced to the conclusion that "the senator's chief difficulty is that he has forgotten that the been administered, Secretary Houston clusion that "the senator's chief diffi-culty is that he has forgotten that the United States was engaged in the war and has successfully financed the un-paralleled burdens thrust upon it by the war and conditions growing out of the war."

In taking up the assertions made by the republican presidential candidate at Baltimore and Wheeling recently Secretary Houston says it is obvious that the Senator knows little of the subject and that he is being badly advised.

Says Statements Are Lacking. "Senator Harding's statements that be public debt of the United States the public debt of the United States in constantly increasing are not only untrue but are peculiarly lacking in frankness," said Secretary Houston, "for he bases the statement on a $25.000.000 increase in the two months of July and August, 1920, omitting to state the fact that in the year from August 31, 1919, when the public debt reached its peak at $26.596.701.648.01, to August 31, 1920, there had been a decrease in the gross public debt of $2.272.029.524.22, and a decrease in the floating debt of $1,367.024,000.

Senator Harding's discussion of the ance" of the situation, Mr. Houston asserted. Interest rates of 5% and 6 per cent, paid on the last issues, he said, had resulted in increasingly large quantities of certificates being absorbed by investors and had not compelled the withdrawal of funds which might otherwise have gone to help industry, as Senator Harding had charged. Present indications, they said, were that the republicans would said, were that the republicans would elect twenty-three, a net gain of eight. clect twenty-three, a net gain of eight. The present Senate stands 49 republicans and 47 democrats. A net gain of 8 would make the republican strength 57 and the democrats 39, or a republican majority of 17, the statement showed. Of the 435 congressmen to be elected the republicans expected to make a net gain of 25, the statement said. The present republican majority in the next congress would not be less than 71, they estimated.

than 71, they estimated. The fifteen republican senatorial candidates rated as certain of election are in California, Connecticut, Idaho. Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas. New Hampshire, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Vermont and Washington.

Excerpt From Statement. The statement adds: "Of these states California, Idaho and South Dakota are expected to elect republican successors to democratic sen-ators, a gain of three. In the fol-lowing states the republicans have better than an even chance:
"Colorado, Kentucky, Maryland,
Missouri, Oklahoma, Utah, Wisconsin and Oregon. Of these Colorado, Kentucky, Maryland, Oklahoma and Oregon are said to be set to return republican candidates.

publican candidates as successors to democrats, making a net gain of five, or a total net gain of eight in the two groups, which would increase the republican strength to fifty-seven, leaving the democrats thirty-nine. "In two states the situation is in doubt. They are Arizona and Nevada, where successors to democrats are to be elected. If both these states should be lost to the republicans, which is not conceded, it would not affect the estimated republican gain affect the estimated republican gain of eight.

Conceded to Democrats. "Democratic candidates conceded he election are: "Alabama (two), Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

"East of the Mississippi river re-ports at headquarters indicate that "East of the Mississippi river reports at headquarters indicate that there is not a section where the republicans will lose congressmen, but they stand a good chance of increasing the republican lead. In the New England states the democrats are expected to make no gains, but will lose at least one district in Connecticut.

"In the old middle states the republicans look for a gain of three from Pennsylvania, two from New Jersey and one in Maryland. In the old middle west group they expect to gain three in Ohio and one in Illinois.

"Invading the southern states, they count on a gain of two in Tennessee, two in North Carolina, and one in Oklahoma and two in Kentucky.

"From the Mississippi river to the mountains they expect to add four republicans from Missouri, one from Kansas and one from Colorado. On the other side of the mountains they count on a gain of two in California and one in Newsda.
